They say the supreme test of your belief in a product is if you'd sell it to your mother. So when real estate agent Jill Carter sold her mother a penthouse in downtown Squamish, it showed the strong faith she has in the value of Aqua at Coastal Village.

"Trust me, my mother is not some-one you want to cross," said Carter, an Aqua sales manager.

As it is, her 70-year-old mother Margot Boland was thrilled with the suite with three bedrooms, a den and storage room. For $380,000, the former Torontonian got a 1,336-square-foot unit on the top floor of a six-storey concrete and steel tower on the edge of parkland. Her penthouse has sweeping views of the snow-capped Coastal Range Mountains and a man-made tidal estuary teeming with wildlife.

"Most of what I need is here," says Boland. "If I need to do more shopping, Park Royal [shopping centre] in West Vancouver is only 40 minutes away."

She and the other buyers who purchased tower suites and 35 adjacent two-storey townhomes were the winners in a real estate windfall. When the units began selling late last year, many of them were discounted 40 per cent below the initial 2008 price. The deals got better this month. The Bank of Montreal and receivership developer Bowra Group Inc. have cut last fall's prices for the remaining 22 units by up to another $50,000 to $70,000 each. Two bedroom and den units now list starting at $245,000, while three bed-room and den units are priced between $309,000 and $319,000.

So far, the buyers have been a mix two-thirds are between 25 and 45 years old, many with young families, while the remainder are empty nesters, mainly from Metro Vancouver. It's exactly what the project architects had in mind when they set about to create "a village in the town of Squamish."

"We looked at the town and saw that it is strung out along the highway and that there wasn't a real any sense of community in the downtown," North Vancouver architect Sig Toews said. In raising the site elevation to comply with flood plain requirements, Toews' firm had a choice and an opportunity: build garages and parking at ground level or put all the parking for the village under the site.

Bowra Group upgrades in the kitchen include energy-efficient Kitchen Aid appliances, shaker-style cabinetry and breakfast bars.

The site's real estate contacts are Darren McCartney and Jill Carter.

"So we asked what creates a sense of community? Take out the cars."

With cars banished to below grade, Toews and his team were free to focus on "building a better village," designing townhouses with yards and ground-floor apartments with garden space and patios.

The project, however, ran into financial difficulties and the 2008 down-turn pushed the original developer into receivership. When the construction was completed last fall, the rush was on. About 75 per cent of the units sold within a few months.

Helping to fuel sales was people's growing realization that the $600-million government upgrade for the 2010 Winter Olympic Games had tamed the white-knuckle drive that was the Sea to Sky Highway. A centre median and additional passing lanes along much of the Vancouver-Whistler highway made the drive safer and sliced 15 minutes off travel time from Squamish to Vancouver. That has spawned plans for new residential development along the Howe Sound corridor from Porteau Cove to Squamish, including 4,000 units at Britannia Beach.

Commute time was a factor for Eric Bazett, 30, and his partner Amanda, who had been looking to buy after living in a South Surrey basement suite with their two sons. They had dismissed Squamish as too far a commute, but driving the highway came as a pleasant surprise, as did Aqua's amenities.

"I couldn't believe that we could have an ocean and mountain-view for that price," said Bazett, who paid $350,000 for a 1,042-square foot two-bedroom-and-den suite. "My wife walked in - I was still taking my shoes off - took a look at the views and said, 'Yup, we're buying this one.' " Bazett says his 50-minute commute to downtown Vancouver is the same as it was from South Surrey, but less stressful and more scenic. The couple also liked the safety of a car-less environment and play area for their boys and the 10-minute walk to the major-chain grocery store, community centre and schools.

The family is looking forward this summer to exploring the nearby hiking trails in the self-proclaimed "Out-door Recreation Capital of Canada."

Bazett also got the benefit of numerous upgrades by Bowra Group: Inlaid hardwood flooring, energy efficient KitchenAid appliances, granite countertops and breakfast bar. Bathrooms have a large glass-enclosed shower in one and a tub and shower surround in the other. Extra large windows with venetian blinds provide panoramic views of the famous Stawamus Chief peak and the nearby Howe Sound seashore.

The complex has also attracted investor interest in the building, which has no rent restrictions. Units with two bedrooms and a den rent for between $1,200 and $1,300 a month. Aqua is part of a larger vision that Squamish has for a residential and commercial development of its sea-shore, once dominated by the Wood-fibre pulp mill, which closed in 2006.

The waterfront project will be the "crown jewel" of the community, says an enthusiastic Mayor Rob Kirkham. There are also plans to complete Aqua's last two phases, which call for an additional 82 condos and 16 town-homes on the remaining 1.9 acres.

Meanwhile, the community of 17,000, which just-released Canada Census figures show to be one of B.C.'s faster growing and younger median age communities, is already home to five schools, including two universities, among other amenities.

"There is a never-ending list of reasons why people are moving to Squamish," says Kirkham. "It's not just a suburb of Vancouver; it has its own character."

Aqua at Coastal Village in Squamish

In the scenic bedroom community of Squamish, this tower offers an outstanding buy and incredible real estate value

Sun

Saturday, December, 03, 2011

Aqua is a six-storey tower

The massive upgrade of the Sea to Sky (Highway 99) for the 2010 Winter Games shortened (and made safer) the drive from Squamish to Vancouver, making this community of 17,000 a viable bedroom community for people working in the Lower Mainland.

But while house prices have escalated Vancouver's outlying suburbs, there are some outstanding buys in the 'Outdoor Adventure Capital of Canada' that lies nestled between the granite monolith known as The Chief, the turquoise waters of Howe Sound, and the glacier-clad Coast Range mountains.

Located right in downtown Squamish and just a short walk from a soon-to-be revitalized waterfront, Aqua at Coastal Village was perhaps a bit ahead of its time when it was first marketed in 2008.

The dwelling's clean, modern interior offers great views of the area's rich greenery.

Kitchens have been upgraded with stainless steel appliances

The project's original developer ran into financial difficulty during the economic downturn, and Aqua went into receivership while it was under construction. However, the six-storey concrete and steel condominium tower and garden level town houses have been completed and are ready for occupancy. The real winners are home buyers looking for an incredible deal-in some cases units up to 40 per cent cheaper than they would have paid in 2008.

Jill Carter, one of the sales managers for Aqua at Coastal Village, says: "People are starting to realize what a great community Squamish is and it's incredible real estate value. We have five schools, two universities and are halfway between Vancouver and Whistler - two of the most expensive places in Canada to live."

"In this case, the Bowra Group Incorporated has essentially taken over as the developer of the project," Carter continues. "People can purchase here in full confidence. In fact, the Bowra Group has made improvements like offering stainless steel Whirlpool appliances and upgraded the carpeting and laminate flooring from the original spec sheet. Essentially, the entire project is being offered at below replacement cost; you will not find a concrete and steel building anywhere in the Lower Mainland at this price." All Aqua homes also come with the most comprehensive B.C. government-approved home warranty program through National Home Warranty.

In the tower, two-bedroom-plus-den, two-bathroom units start at $259,000. For this low price, you get more than a thousand square feet of living space-with plenty of extras. Horizontal venetian blinds on all windows, inlaid hardwood flooring, beautifully finished shaker-style wood cabinetry, a gas range stove, dishwasher, microwave, washer and dryer, and granite countertops .

Aqua features courtyard gardens, tree-lined walkways and public artwork. A green-space buffer zone enhances privacy and the on-site trail system links up with public waterfront trails .

A few two-storey, three-bedroom town houses, complete with outdoor terraces, are also still available. Located across from the condo tower, these units have proven to be popular with young families flocking to Squamish looking for not just a great lifestyle but a friendly small town in which to raise their kids. Carter says: "Squamish is really a young community, with over 60 per cent of its residents under 40. But we're also seeing buyer interest from North Shore residents downsizing into smaller homes."

The deal gets even sweeter for Aqua purchasers during the month of December. Selected condos on the fifth and sixth floor are being discounted a further $15,000, while third-and fourth-storey units are reduced by $7,500 off the already low receivership-sale pricing.

Acqua and Soliel Condos/Condominium – Skye – Coastal village living squamish:

The debut collection of homes in Squamish community – Open floor plans and oversized windows create flexible rooms full of natural light. Designer details include richly stained custom wood cabinetry, granite counters, cool natural colour schemes, pampering soaker tubs, and so much more.

Squamish Coastal Village brings a fresh interpretation to Classic West Coast Mountain resort architecture. Tall stone clad chimneys rise from steep sloping roofs and broad wood trimmed windows frame the views. Red cedar shingles, Squamish rock cladding and lush roof terrace gardens add the appeal of the unique condominium buildings.

About Skye

Take a generous serving of the West Coast's spectacular natural grandeur, add a large dose of Kitsilano's impetuous charm, then sprinkle liberally with contemporary style, sophisticated features, and great affordability. Et voila. You now have the perfect recipe for a home with panache.

And the good news is you can find this winning combination only 45 minutes from downtown Vancouver. That's less time than it takes to drive from Coquitlam or Aldergrove, but you actually have something beautiful to look at as you drive. Welcome to Skye, a new master planned community on the banks of Squamish's scenic estuary.

VILLAGE LIVING, CITY STYLE

Only a few minutes stroll from the shops and amenities of the revitalized downtown core, Skye's ambiance is one of a friendly, coastal village.

Still, make no mistake, in addition to the views these Acqua/Soliel Condos are decidedly urban-savvy. Kitchens boast dramatic flush panel or shaker hardwood cabinetry, breakfast bars, full appliance package, plus ample storage for even the most adventurous, prolific chef. Fireplaces, soaker tubs, and sunny balconies or patios come standard, as does the rich warmth of hardwood flooring throughout the main living areas.

WORKING WITH THE ENVIRONMENT

The first phase in what will ultimately be an innovative collection of 64 townhomes and 160 steel and concrete, apartment-style condominiums, Acqua/Soliel Condos Skye has a clear mandate of blending into rather than conflicting with the surrounding environment.

Skye's initial release of 19 townhomes begins the first week in May with a second release scheduled for later this summer. Priced from $389,000, these homes range from 1,439 to 1,710 square feet and come in a variety of 2- and 3-bedroom floor plans.

Squamish Coastal Village – Skye, Soleil and now launching Aqua

A new master-planned development real estate property is under way in Squamish, BC and will be completed before the 2010 Winter Olympic Games. There are 3 phases: Skye, Soleil and now Aqua at Coastal Village, Squamish.

Coastal Village Adds Aqua to Its Squamish Community

Water Front Living. Phase 1, Sold Out! Phase 2, 70% Sold! Phase 3 at Coastal Village, Your Last Opportunity! Aqua at Coastal Village, Squamish. Grand Opening. Published in Westcoast Homes & Design in Sept 2007.

Come and visit our fully displayed show suite at the Coastal Village discovery centre. Discover Squamish's best value at Unit 9, 1233 Main Street, Squamish, BC. Open Saturday to Tuesday between 12 to 4pm.

Aqua | Situated on the edge of the estuary, these townhomes and condominiums are surrounded by nature at its most spectacular, offering views of the Tantalus mountains and the Chief, with recreational pursuits as well as shops and services nearby.

Building on the success of Skye and Soleil, Pointe of View Developments is now unveiling its latest offering in its Coastal Village community in Squamish: Aqua.

Well situated to take advantage of all that Squamish has to offer, Coastal Village is an urban village located at the edge of the estuary. Here, Aqua residents are afforded unparalleled views down the channel as well as views of the Tantalus mountains to the west and the Chief to the east. Coastal Village Aqua is also protected from further development as it borders nature on three of its four sides.

Like Skye and Soleil at Coastal Village, Aqua offers buyers a choice of townhomes or apartment condominiums, the latter housed in solid concrete-and-steel structure inspired by its breathtaking West Coast surroundings.

The increasing popularity of Squamish coupled with a great product has proved to be a winning combination for Pointe of View. Skye is now sold out and Soliel is nearing 70% sold, meaning that Aqua at Coastal Village is virtually the last opportunity to purchase a home here. “Skye and Soleil have been hugely popular with buyers and investors seeking value, location, and solid durable construction,” says Pointe of View’s Allan De Genova, adding the other main selling feature of this community is the incomparable location. “It’s a great combination of natural surroundings and urban convenience,” he says. “The shops and services in downtown Squamish are mere minutes away, as are countless recreational pursuits, be it climbing the Chief, hiking one of the many trail systems, or windsurfing where the Squamish River meets Howe Sound.”

The homes in Coastal Village’s Aqua feature open floor plans and oversized windows that create flexible rooms full of natural light. Designer details include richly stained custom wood cabinetry, stainless steel appliances, granite counters, cool, natural colour schemes, soaker tubs and much, much more. Aqua residents also have access to a host of onsite amenities in the main building, including a fully equipped fitness facility with lap pool and sauna, meeting rooms and a large outdoor terrace ideal for entertaining.

Constructed following LEED (Leadership of Energy and Environmental Design) principles for green building design, Coastal Village Aqua homes have futuristic smart-home wiring and environmentally sensitive lighting and plumbing. Pointe of View has also gone to great lengths to ensure the security and safety of residents throughout such elements as monitored entry points, well-lit walkways, and a community design that overall encourages interaction and awareness.

Two-bedroom-and-den apartments at Aqua Coastal Village, which start at 1,071 square feet, are priced from $329,000. The two-bedroom townhomes are priced from $442,000 and start at 1,639 square feet. The townhomes also come in three-bedroom and three-plus loft configurations and also include two parking spaces.

For more information, visit the Coastal Village Display Centre in Squamish at townhouse 9 1233 Main St. 604.616.1215 or coastalvillageliving.com.

Soleil at Coastal Village Residents will enjoy all that Squamish has to offer

Published in the Westcoast Homes & Design May 2007 edition. Soleil condominium homes and townhouses | The second phase of Pointe of View Developments' Coastal Village in Squamish includes condos and townhomes with spectacular views, natural surroundings and convenience.

Take a drive up the Sea to Sky Highway and it isn't just the new highway that will catch your attention. The area is undergoing dramatic transformation, with new pre-construction Squamish real estate developments dotting the shoreline and mountainside from Horseshoe Bay onward.

At the centre of this presales real estate development activity in Squamish BC, which in the past 18 months or so has experienced phenomenal growth, driven by the pre-Olympic highway improvements, the entrance of the Quest University and Capilano College campuses and a reputation as the "outdoor recreational capital of Canada."

The Soleil and Skye Condos at Coastal Village

Well situated to take advantage of all that Squamish has to offer is pre-sales Pointe of View Developments' Coastal Village, an urban village concept located at the edge of the estuary. Coastal Village Squamish offers residents unparalleled views down the channel as well as views of the Tantalus Mountains to the west and The Chief to the east. It is also protected from further pre-construction Squamish real estate property development as it borders nature on three of its four sides.

"Coastal Village Squamish's location is the perfect blend of natural surroundings and convenience," says Pointe of View's Allan De Genova.

"Within minutes you can walk the shops and services in downtown Squamish. In the same amount of time, you can also be climbing the Chief, hiking one of the many trail systems, or windsurfing where the Squamish River meets Howe Sound."

Last year, Pointe of View unveiled the first phase of Coastal Village Skye apartment condo homes, to rave reviews. A collection of 226 homes, including 162 steel and concrete Skye apartments in Squamish and 64 townhomes at Coastal Village Skye Squamish, it clearly struck the right chord with home buyers and investors seeking value, location and solid construction.

This year, Pointe of View launched Soleil at Coastal Village - the second phase in Squamish's Coastal Village master plan. Like Skye in the first phase, Soleil at Coastal Village in Squamish offers homebuyers a choice of condominiums and townhomes.

The homes in Soleil at Squamish Coastal Village feature open floor plans and oversized windows that create flexible rooms full of natural light. Designer details include richly stained custom wood cabinetry, stainless steel appliances, granite counters, natural colour schemes, soaker tubs and much more. Squamish Soleil at Coastal Village residents also have access to a host of on-site amenities in the main building, including a fully equipped fitness facility with lap pool and sauna, meeting rooms and a large outdoor terrace, ideal for entertaining.

Constructed following LEED (Leadership in Energy and Environmental Design) principles for green building design, Coastal Village Soleil and Skye apartments and townhomes have futuristic smart-home wiring and environmentally sensitive lighting and plumbing. Pointe of View Soleil condos has also gone to great lengths to ensure the security and safety of residents thorough such elemtns as monitored entry points, well-lit walkways and a community design that encourages interaction and awareness.

The apartments at Soleil at Coastal Village Squamish start at $330,0000 and the two bedroom and dens start at 1,068 square feet. The townhomes start at $469,900 and range from 1,400 to 1800 square feet. The latter come in three bedroom and three plus loft configurations and also include two parking spots at Coastal Village Soleil in Squamish BC.

For more information, visit the Coastal Village display centre at 121 Lonsdale Avenue in North Vancouver. It is open from 1 to 5 p.m. Monday to Thursday and noon until 4 p.m. on Saturdays and Sundays. For more information phone 604-616-1215 or visit www.coastalvillageliving.com.
