What's LIVE WEST COAST

Live West Coast means an appreciation for life and everything it embodies. Where your relaxed, laid-back lifestyle reflects the privilege of your co-existence with a vast, diverse landscape, while engaging every opportunity our natural playground provides, all in perfect harmony. There's a common, inherent bond where every moment and interaction between friends, neighbours, and communities directly influences and relates to the wonders of our surroundings.

Never does a day go by without a sense of complete astonishment at the raw beauty of the West Coast that's overwhelmingly sensational on all five senses. An addiction that you can boast about, a natural high that you barely understand, yet crave for more and more – and that's okay. It's become a unique meeting place, a global water cooler, if you may, that really brings together a plethora of individuals. And, it seems the more we enjoy our West Coast, the more seriously we take our responsibility to live a respectful, sustainable lifestyle, so future generations can enjoy the same magnetic vibe that all who visit are enlightened with.

The West Coast is a place you call home. Whether you choose to participate extremely or serenely, with friends or alone; where the diversity of natural elements and weather patterns echo our cultures, identities, and lifestyles. It's an inspiration, a real glimpse into a unique, organic world without limits, and definitely something to high-five about!

So go ahead...

LIVE WEST COAST

You're gonna do it anyhow!

Adera Cares About Me

Hey! Don't forget, the legacy of our little blue dot in the Milky Way will soon be handed down to us. Let's not disappoint our beloved Mother Earth. We need to revitalize and rejuvenate her!

Well, guess we can't exactly send her to the spa for some much need R&R, but we can definitely show her love by changing the way we live. It's pretty sweet that you live in a home certified by an independent 3rd party that meets minimum standards of sustainable practices. With this in mind, you can be sure that your sustainability triple bottom line is maximized:

1. a direct financial benefit in the way of lower monthly bills
2. a personal benefit knowing that you're more committed to being responsible for this planet
3. a social benefit knowing that you're doing something awesome for friends, family, and all of mankind.

Green is the new black. So what does that mean? State-of-the-art features made from natural materials or recycled content, chosen to last longer, and designed with a reduced carbon-footprint in mind. What else? High efficiency appliances that minimize energy and water consumption, and also waste production.

Adera really does care about making a difference. It doesn't stop with homes either. Looking toward the future, Adera wants to ensure that everyone benefits from attention to a sustainable working environment, human resources, personal growth, and development. It's more than just nurturing. It's human fuel for the future! That same focus and energy spreads and saturates every community they participate in. Whether public art, sponsorship of up-and-coming local athletes, renewing natural habitats, or simple welcoming parties, there's an insuppressible enthusiasm for sustaining communities that makes up the bigger picture.

Adera Cares. Together for the Future.

Six ways that a new home will create a better life:

Sun

Saturday, November, 19, 2011

1. Inspired design. Stirring, compelling architecture instills your sense of owner pride. Pride leads to an intense sense of fulfillment. And fulfillment leads to a relaxed, comfortable state of mind. A sense of relaxation while living in your home creates obvious benefits: better health, increased happiness, and the ability to cope with physical and psychological challenges. Well-designed, award-winning communities validate your lifestyle choices, while signature design elements enhance your individuality.

2. A trusted builder. A home is the largest personal investment you will make, both financially and emotionally. Make sure that your homebuilder will stand behind its craft. An extended warranty guarantees extended peace of mind and avoid unnecessary and unexpected maintenance costs. Outstanding customer service takes the day-to-day worry out of ownership and contributes to peace of mind.

3. Verified sustainability. Third-party certified sustainable home standards provide a triple bottom line for home owners. First, there's a direct financial benefit— for example, in your lower monthly energy bills. That feels good! Secondly, reducing your environmental impact enhances feelings of social responsibility. Finally, there's the knowledge that living

“green” will improve the lives of others. Sustainably-built homes made from eco-consciously produced materials can offer a healthier environment. 4. Customization, not cookiecutter. You wouldn't like someone else telling you what to wear and how to act— why would your house be any different? You have your own style. Choose the way your home will look and feel inside.

5. A valued location. You get what you pay for; and the least expensive house will seldom fit your needs. On the other hand, a location is important. The perfect home strikes a balance between what you need and what you desire. Enduring real estate value is usually tied to location. But it's more than that— today's homeowner deserves to be able walk to good retail shops, public transit, green, open spaces, and decent schools.

6. Truly useful amenities. A great amenity package should add an exciting new dimension to your life. A place to socialize, to recharge, to entertain, or to escape— where you can meet your neighbours, and make new friends. A worthwhile amenity program will make you feel good about your home investment.
