WELCOME TO BREWERY CREEK – VANCOUVER'S FIRST SUBURB

It's true. Over 100 years ago, the abundant supply of fresh water in the area brought first the breweries and then the people who worked at them to make this a place to live and work. Today, this vibrant section of Vancouver is home to an exciting mix of old and new architecture and draws an eclectic group of residents who love its independent spirit. What was once a "suburb" is now at the centre of it all, and at its centre is Wohlsein.

MEET THE NEIGHBOURS

Record stores. Parks. Second-hand bookshops. Coffee shops. Restaurants. Breweries. Cute boutiques. The list of places you can go and things to do in your neighbourhood goes on and on and on. Wohlsein is centrally located, walking distance to all action, but just far enough away to make your corner of your neighbourhood a little quieter.

HERE'S TO A WALKABLE
HOOD WITH EVERYTHING
YOU NEED.

REASSURINGLY OLD. REFRESHINGLY NEW.

The interiors at Wohlsein reference the past while making full use of modern cues to create something distinctively contemporary. In the kitchen, a heritage-inspired hexagonal backsplash contrasts modern stainless appliances. The hexagonal tile continues on floors in the bathrooms where along with accents like brushed nickel pulls they juxtapose with a stainless single-basin, under-mount sink to create a singularly modern effect – something distinctly Wohlsein.
