Gallery Designer The Book Floorplans

Now nearly 40 years old as a practice, Castiglia has established itself as a boutique firm that takes on very few commissions but invests itself heavily into each one. To add further to the partnership, we brought in Michelle Biggar from the Office of McFarlane Biggar who, amongst other things, designed the lobby for our Fairmont Pacific Rim hotel.

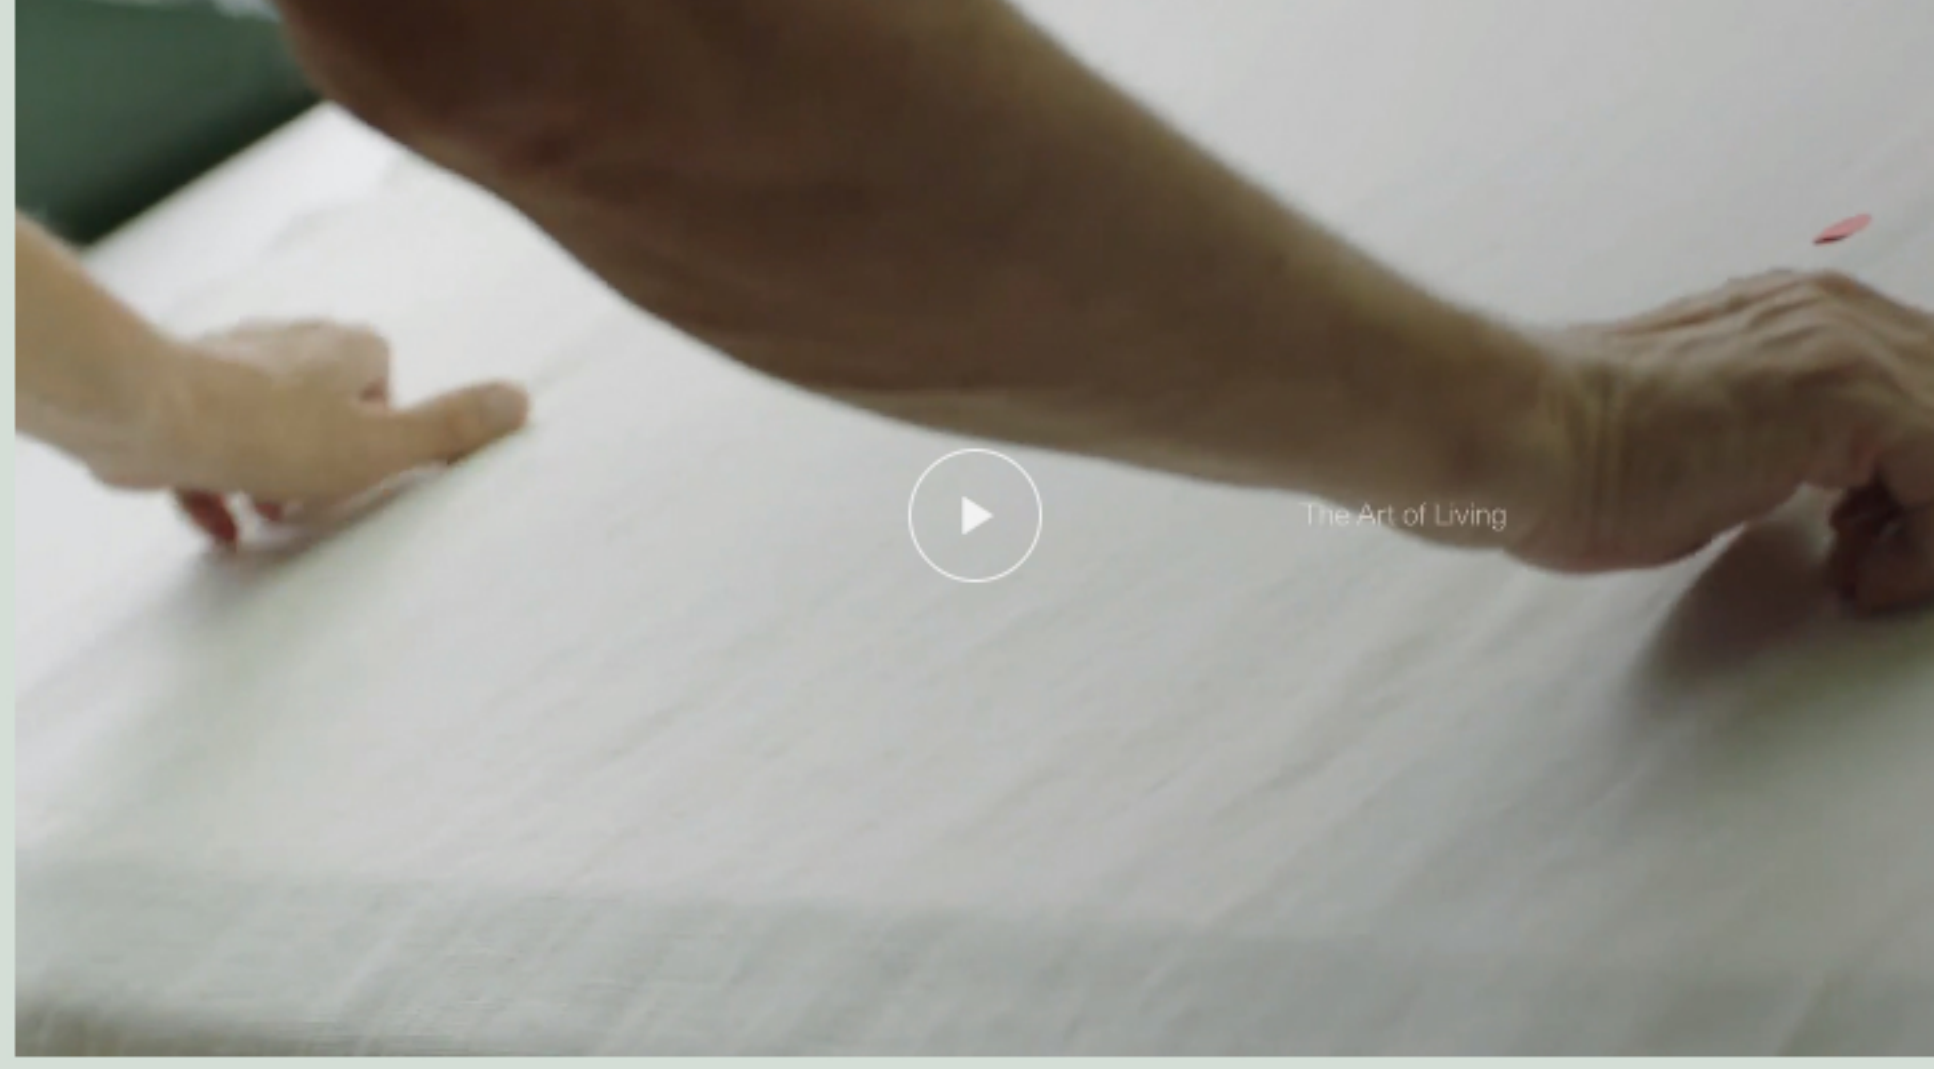

The team has produced an interior aesthetic for Building 3 that reflects the effortless sophistication and style of true Italian culture. Castiglia's practice is known for keeping things simple and stripping away irrelevant ornamentation, while at the same time ensuring timeless luxury.

The Art of Living

Design comes from the latin word "designo". It means conceiving, sketching, marking but also choosing, deciding.. For us, designing something means sketching a route and marking a direction.

Majestic mountains, serene forests and countless bays, Vancouver truly is a city unlike any other. Just like nature doesn't build in straight lines, so is the architecture of Oakridge characterized by organic fluency.

Casa

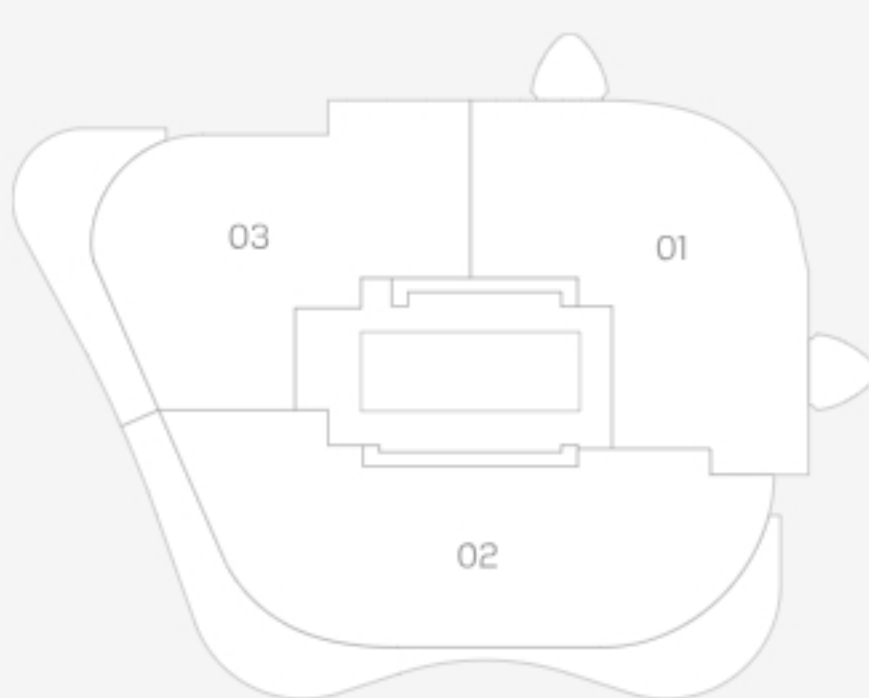

Stepping into a casa in Building No.3 is in a way much like stepping into a natural oasis in the middle of the city. Every surface breathes raw natural beauty.
